Charlie 1

BOOK OF CHARLIE

HIS VISIONS AND INTERPRETATIONS THEREOF

1 All of this began with a vision. It came to me as I sat in the examination room waiting for a doctor to return with my grim prognosis.

2 I heard a bell ring deeply, resonating through the walls, and I began to rise. My spirit left my body and I passed through the upper floors of the hospital and out through the roof.

3 Golden rays of light shone from the heavens, filling me with warmth. I looked up towards their source and saw, not the sun, but a great golden eye.

4 An infinite array of pictures and numbers swirled around the eye. I saw in it my childhood, my current suffering, and places that I would some day visit.

5 The eye spoke to me, saying, "Now you see. Heaven is not above us, but below."

6 I looked beneath me and my heart turned. Where skyscrapers had been, there were ashen, concrete husks. Where roads had been, there were rivers full of bones. I turned back towards the eye, but it had gone, replaced by the fluorescent lights of the hospital. My vision had ended.
